* Mahvash Syed

Abstract

Rural Development is vital to the economic, social and environmental viability of nations. The country is facing a number of serious problems even after 68 years of Independence. However, problems like poverty, unemployment; starving, malnutrition, inequality and exploitation are grave one. On one side, the level of education is low and on the other side, there is problem of educated unemployment. India is primarily an agricultural country and this paper reflects that the overall growth of Indian economy is possible only by developing agriculture and villages. The population boom has resulted into increased labour. Thus, it is very natural that employment opportunities have shrunk in view of the population boom.
